

Call for Abstracts: Humboldt Normativity Conference 2022

Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, 5 - 7 September 2022

Keynote speakers: David Enoch (Hebrew University), Sarah McGrath (Princeton)

This conference will bring together philosophers working on normativity. We invite submissions on foundational problems of moral philosophy, on practical normativity more general, on reasons and rationality, and on epistemic and other forms of normativity. Our primary aim is to provide a forum for lively and constructive exchange amongst philosophers currently working in the field. Over and above the two keynote talks, there are eight slots for contributed papers. Please submit an abstract (800-1500 words, prepared for blind review) until 1 April 2022 as a pdf file to normativity2022@hu-berlin.de. Authors of accepted papers will be notified by 15 May 2022. Papers should be suitable for a 30 minutes presentation.

Organizers: Benjamin Kiesewetter and Thomas Schmidt, Department of Philosophy, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin

This is the seventh conference in a series of yearly Humboldt-Southampton Normativity Conferences, alternating between Humboldt-Universität in Berlin and Southampton University in the UK.
